

1

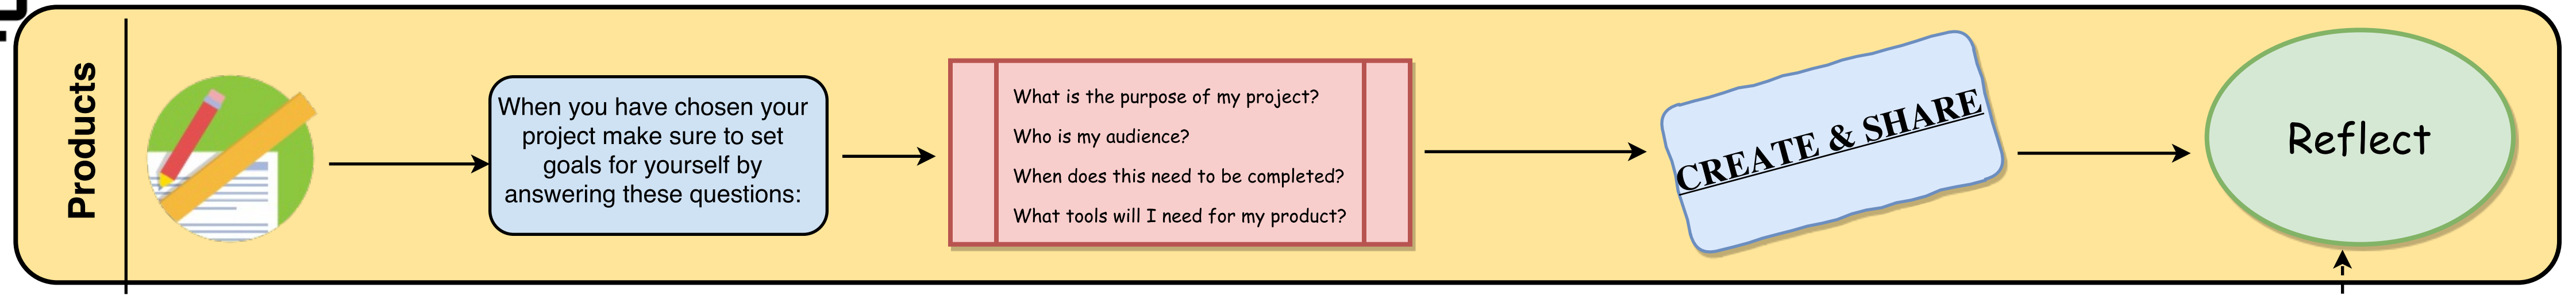

If you have trouble choosing only three topics, set a timer and spend 3 minutes searching the internet for interesting sources for each topic. You may discover that there is not much information available on some topics or you may find sources that make you much more excited about a certain idea. Stop searching when you have found something great! You can always save your list for your next project!

2

Use your Citation Keeper to record where you find your information. You will need this later!

3

What NEW IDEAS do you have now?

Did you learn something new? What did you learn about learning? What was most difficult to complete? How would you change your organization, timing, or presentation next time?

